Welcome to the 23rd Annual Frontiers in Colorectal and Intestinal Disease

It is my great pleasure, as Dean of St Mark's Academic Institute, to welcome you to London for the 23rd Annual Frontiers in Colorectal and Intestinal Disease Congress. This year's meeting focuses on disease prevention in clinical practice, highlighting innovative strategies to reduce the burden of illness.

We are delighted to host participants both here in London and around the world online. With high-quality facilities and streaming, we aim to provide every attendee with an excellent experience, whether joining us in person or virtually.

The programme embraces a wide range of multidisciplinary perspectives—medical, endoscopic, radiological, oncological, surgical, nursing, and nutritional—while ensuring that the patient voice is clearly heard. We are honoured to welcome Michael Camilleri (USA) as the Sir Francis Avery Jones Visiting Professor, George Chang (USA) as the Sir Alan Parks Visiting Professor, Johan Burisch (Denmark) as the John Lennard-Jones Visiting Professor, and Eva Angenete (Sweden) delivering the Basil Morson State of the Art Lecture.

Over three days, the Congress will explore topics central to everyday clinical practice and cutting-edge research.

Wednesday opens with sessions on international controversies in cancer prevention, functional gut disorders, emerging technologies, proctology in motion, and complex cancer, alongside parallel discussions on colorectal surgery, treatment sustainability in IBD, and strategies to mitigate treatment-related complications. The prestigious John Nicholls Prize will also be awarded for the best new research.

Thursday examines prevention of IBD-related cancer, strategies to halt Crohn's disease progression, post-colonoscopy cancers, and advances in endoscopy at the surgical frontier.

On Friday, we turn to minimalist approaches in early rectal cancer, the St Mark's Debate on neoadjuvant treatment versus immediate surgery for non-mesorectal fascia—involving colorectal cancer, neuromotility conditions under the principle primum non nocere, and our Consultant Corner in IBD. A special Sponsor Symposium will present the latest developments in the field, and on Wednesday and Thursday we will host breakfast and lunchtime Round Table Workshops in small groups with leading experts; early booking is essential as places are limited.

This Congress is accredited for 15 CPD points by the Association of Coloproctology of Great Britain & Ireland (ACPGBI) and for 19 CPD credits by the Federation of the Royal College of Physicians (RCP). It is also proudly endorsed by the European Crohn's and Colitis Organisation (ECCO) and the British Society of Gastroenterology (BSG).

We warmly thank all our supporters, sponsors and contributors for their invaluable assistance in making this Congress possible. We hope the coming days will be stimulating, educational, and thought-provoking, and we wish you an enjoyable and memorable time here in London for the 23rd Frontiers Congress.
